Police Brutality Victim

I don't have a criminal record. I don't do anything illegal. Just for the record I don't drink. I don't smoke. I don't do anything like that. Civilian men that I know pay the New York City police to harass people including me without any legitimate reason. It's beyond ridiculous. The NYPD chased away many of my web marketing and online advertising clients.

The NYPD have sabotaged my career for more than a decade. Anytime I find an opportunity to earn money the NYPD tells the person or people who are thinking about conducting business with me either not to work with me or to help the police sabotage me further.

There is no reason to try to keep the police brutality against me a secret from potential employers. The New York City police have sabotaged dozens of my web marketing and online advertising clients. I've had former clients tell me the police told them not to do business with me. I've seen uniformed police sabotage my business relationships right in front of me. Obviously, anyone who even thinks about helping me against the NYPD's orders should not be hiding anything illegal because the NYPD will find it.

I've received more than one hundred credit card payments from dozens of web marketing and online advertising clients before the police sabotaged my career. I don't want to jinx it although out of all those transactions I've only had one credit card chargeback for about $250. The person who called the credit card company and charged me back and I are on good terms again. I would probably be providing web marketing for the individual currently if the NYPD wasn't harassing me.

I can't name the names of the civilian men who pay the NYPD to harass me because I'd be sued for defamation, libel, and slander. I know several civilians who are connected with law enforcement in New York and other states.

The New York City police have civilian women and men harass me in Manhattan while they supervise. For example, the NYPD have civilian women and men blow marijuana and vape smoke at me, crash into me, shove their phones in my face, try to start arguments with me, threaten me, rob me, vandalize my property, plus much more. If you think that's bad, what I'm leaving out is much worse.

If anyone reading this knows how I can legally get the New York City police to stop harassing me please let me know. It's very difficult for American police brutality victims to get help from the government and law enforcement. I've contacted hundreds of government and law enforcement offices in New York City and New York State and the New York City police are still harassing me.

There are several women married to police officers who are victims of domestic violence that the government and law enforcement aren't helping. It's well documented. "Officer involved domestic violence." There are police brutality victims in American prisons that aren't getting help. The police do a lot of good and bad. The bad is inexcusable.

Many people who work with me in person or on Zoom are impressed with my knowledge about web marketing and online advertising. Results are not guaranteed. I will do my best.

The New York City police have chased away dozens of my web marketing and online advertising clients over the years. I'm not giving up. I make the best of all situations. I'm trying to find jobs. In addition to looking for jobs, In my spare time I contact accredited investors to try to raise money for startups. For example, real estate, art, theater, food, etc.

Since the New York City police started harassing me, my phones, laptops, tablets, and other property has been stolen and vandalized more than one hundred times. I've been robbed, harassed, and had my property vandalized in the Financial District, Tribeca, West Village, Flatiron District, Chelsea, Murray Hill, Upper East Side, and Upper West Side. I have police reports, insurance documents, receipts, and other evidence to prove it. My cell phone was stolen six times in 2023 alone.

The index number for my current pro se lawsuit in the Manhattan Supreme Civil Court Mark Pine vs The City of New York (NYPD) is 100120/2026. There will be plenty of public evidence and exhibits about the NYPD harassing me. I'm optimistic that everything is going to work out. I never give up. I make the best out of all situations.

My health insurance is Healthfirst Medicaid. I get a yearly physical from an excellent Manhattan doctor. I got my colonoscopy. I get a skin physical every year. I have an excellent dentist. I'm healthy except for back and knee issues.

Back and Knee Pain

Due to chronic back pain and degenerative spinal changes, I have difficulty carrying heavy items, standing for long periods, and performing repetitive bending. Prolonged standing, lifting, and repetitive bending can worsen my symptoms.

These limitations affect the types of jobs I may reasonably be able to perform.

When determining appropriate work assignments or employment opportunities, positions that avoid heavy lifting, repetitive bending, and prolonged standing may be more appropriate while I continue medical evaluation and treatment. Work that allows the ability to change positions between sitting and standing as needed may also be more suitable.

I am currently under medical evaluation and treatment for chronic back pain and knee pain. Medical imaging has indicated degenerative spinal changes, and I have upcoming diagnostic imaging and a physical therapy evaluation scheduled as part of my ongoing care.

I am actively following all medical recommendations and awaiting further evaluation through imaging and physical therapy. My intention is to ensure that my documented medical condition and physical limitations are reasonably accommodated.
